

What were the terms of the peace treaty?

The Pilgrims and the Indians made some agreements.

The Pilgrims and the Indians promised they would never attack each other.

When the Indians came to Plymouth, they would leave their bows and arrows behind, they said. And when the Pilgrims visited the Indians, they would leave their guns behind.

There would be no stealing. Each would help the other if an enemy attacked.

The peace treaty was not put in writing, but peace between the Pilgrims and the Indians lasted for fifty-four years.
